Nixon's 12 Cabinet selections headed by Rogers, Rep. Laird

Cabinet reaction favorable

WASHINGTON (AP) — William P. Rogers, tapped as secretary of state in the Nixon administration, was called a "man of unquestioned integrity and ability" Wednesday by a leading Senate Democrat with whom he'll have to deal.

The comment came from Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., who is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which will act on Rogers' nomination after the new session of Congress convenes next month.

Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., of the House Appropriations Committee, said he believes the Cabinet selections for the incoming Republican administration form "a great team."

On the GOP side of the congressional fence, House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said the Richard M. Nixon Cabinet "is a strong team in every respect. This means the nation can anticipate sound, progressive leadership over the next four years."

The new administration will be dealing with a Congress in which Democrats hold an edge in both the Senate and House.

Fulbright and Dean Rusk, the current Democratic secretary of state whom Rogers will succeed, long have been at odds over many areas of foreign policy, particularly the Vietnam war.

Ford, the House GOP leader, said he thinks inclusion of three governors—Volpe of Massachusetts, George Romney of Michi-

President-elect Richard M. Nixon presents to the Nation Wednesday an all-Republican Cabinet of "big men, strong men" to help him chart foreign and domestic policies of his Administration in the next four years. Members of the new Cabinet and their wives are seated in the front row. (UPI Telephoto)

Many posts filled with old friends

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Nixon Wednesday night named former Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers his secretary of state and Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin secretary of defense to fill the premier posts in a Republican Cabinet featuring old friends and familiar faces.

He chose David Kennedy, chairman of the Continental Illinois Bank of Chicago, to be secretary of the treasury.

It was a Cabinet of no surprises, with no Democrat, no Negro, no woman among its 12 members.

By the time Nixon announced his selections in a nationally broadcast and televised appearance from Washington's Shoreham Hotel, the lineup was an open secret. He advised congressional leaders in advance, and his list swiftly became public knowledge.

His selections for the other jobs:

Attorney general: John N. Mitchell of New York, his campaign manager and former law partner.

Secretary of health, education and welfare: Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch of California, who managed Nixon's first, losing campaign for the White House eight years ago.

Secretary of housing and urban development: Gov. George Romney of Michigan, the man Nixon pushed out of the 1968 presidential race with a drubbing in the public opinion polls prior to the New Hampshire primary.

Secretary of labor: George P. Shultz, dean of the graduate school of business at the University of Chicago.

Secretary of transportation: Gov. John A. Volpe of Massachusetts.

Secretary of the interior: Gov. Walter J. Hicke of Alaska.

Secretary of commerce: Maurice H. Stans, budget director to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Secretary of agriculture: Clifford M. Hardin, chancellor of the University of Nebraska.

Postmaster general: Winton M. Blount of Montgomery, Ala., president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

While Romney was a onetime political rival, the other two governors Nixon named to his Cabinet were ardent and early supporters of his quest for the Republican presidential nomination.

Eight of the Cabinet members are men well known to Washington, through elective politics or through assignments within the federal government. Rogers, Stans, Volpe, and briefly, Kennedy, served in administration posts when Eisenhower was president.

Nixon's audience for the Cabinet announcement included the men he named, their wives and children.

Castro charging high landing fees

By PETE GRADY
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — State Department officials denied an unconfirmed report by a leading domestic airlines official that the Cuban Government is charging hijacked planes to Cuba between $15,000 and $20,000 per plane for "landing" and other "tacked on" fees at Cuba's Havana Airport.

The airlines official who wished to remain anonymous claimed that Cuba was not only charging exorbitant landing fees at Havana Airport but also at Varadero, another Cuban airport.

A State Department official admitted that passengers on hijacked planes to Cuba were taken by bus from Havana Airport to Varadero Airport because Cuba would not permit Boeing 707s and 727s to take off "loaded with passengers" from Havana Airport.

The Cuban Government has informed the Swiss Embassy in Cuba that runway strips at Havana Airport "were too short" for the 707s and 727s, that these planes could take off, provided they were not "fully loaded," according to the State Department official.

So far nine planes have been hijacked to Cuba this year, the State Department official said. Landing and other fees at Havana Airport range from $173 to $1,900, depending on the weight of the plane, but there is no landing fee at Varadero Airport for the plane which picks up hijacked passengers to return them to the states, he added.

The landing fee at Kennedy International Airport, New York for an inbound overseas 727 carrying 140 passengers is $59, according to an official of the New York Port of Authority at Kennedy International Airport.

Other fees include $13 per incoming overseas plane for International Arrival Building usage; $1.25 incinerator fee; $2 per passenger for customs.

Total fees for an incoming overseas 140-passenger 727 at Kennedy would be $421. This figure is on a par with total fees charged at Havana Airport for planes of similar size and passenger capacity.

Negro couple suspected hijackers

Champagne flight forced to Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A Trans World Jetliner inaugurating nonstop service from Nashville to Miami was diverted at gunpoint Wednesday to a nonscheduled stop in Cuba with 39 persons aboard.

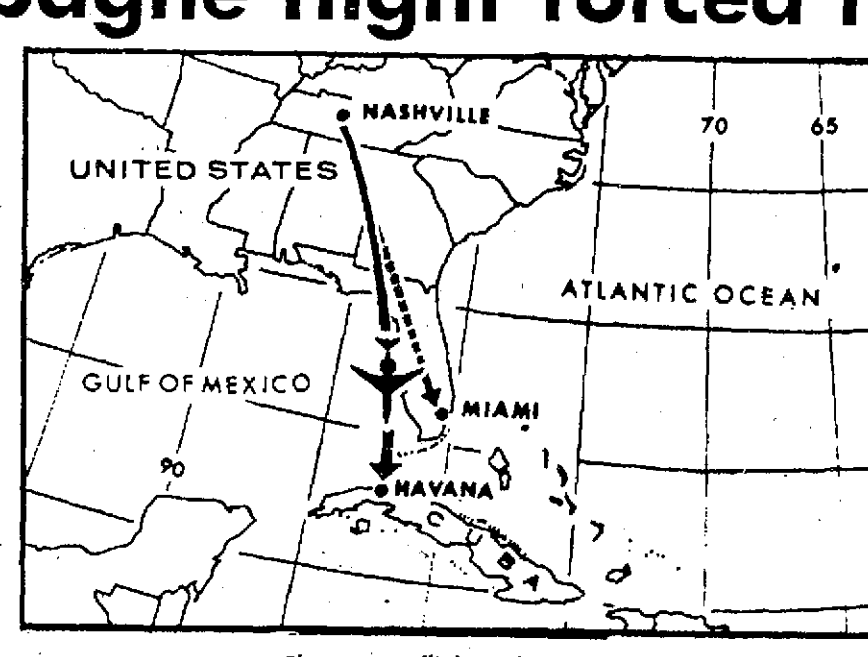

When the plane touched down at Havana's Jose Marti Airport, Cuban security police escorted a young Negro couple, apparently the hijackers, off the plane.

Responding to speculation that the hijackers might be the fugitive Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver and his wife, Kathleen, an FBI spokesman in Miami said the possibility would be investigated.

The 33-year-old Cleaver, sought as a parole violator, has sworn he will never return to prison. The FBI said Tuesday his wife withdrew $33,000 from Cleaver's San Francisco bank account and flew last Sunday to New York. Her later whereabouts were unreported.

The couple in custody in Havana appeared to be in their 20s. The man was bearded, wearing a black beret and tan overcoat over an open-necked pink shirt and dark trousers. The woman also wore a tan coat and her hair in a bob. The crew and passengers debarked a few minutes after the hijacking couple left the plane. Security officials refused to let newsmen talk to the crew or passengers.

"A guy is holding a gun at my

back," Capt. Dennis Maloney radioed shortly after the Boeing 727, with 32 passengers and seven crewmen aboard, took off from Nashville following an airport celebration.

"He is forcing us to go to Havana. We are proceeding there."

The plane, 19th U.S. commercial airliner forced into Cuba during this year's unprecedented wave of skyjackings, landed at Jose Marti airport at 12:27 p.m. EST.

If Cuban authorities followed their usual procedure, the crew would be returned with the plane Wednesday and the passengers banded 80 miles to the Varadero airport to be picked up by a special plane from Miami today.

Aboard the plane when it took off from Nashville at 9:04 a.m. were Mason Rudolph, veteran of the professional golf tour from Clarksville, Tenn., and Tex Ritter, country and Western singing star of Grand Ole Opry fame.

They had attended an airport breakfast sponsored by the Nashville Area Chamber of Commerce in honor of the TWA inaugural service, then boarded the plane for scheduled appearances in Florida.

Since May 1, 1961, 38 planes have been hijacked and Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, D-Fla., of a congressional investigating subcommittee said Tuesday: "all preventive measures have failed." Prime Minister Fidel Castro has not responded to U.S. urgings that the hijackers be returned for prosecution.

The flight originated at St. Louis, taking off at 8:15 a.m. At the time Maloney made his first call, the plane was 10 miles south of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Cleaver was freed on $50,000 bail on assault charges growing out of an April 6 shootout between Black Panthers and police in Oakland, Calif. After he failed to return to custody Nov. 27, a federal charge of unlawful flight to escape prosecution was filed against him.

Cleaver was paroled in 1966 after serving nine years of a 13-year sentence on assault and rape charges. He is believed to have profited substantially from sale of a book, "Soul on Ice," in which he recounted his crimes.

Yule rush starts early in state

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Christmas buying rush in Pennsylvania stores started early this year.

Store managers and spokesmen across the state agree almost unanimously the late gobble-gobble of the Thanksgiving Day Turkey has been a contributory factor to the early Yule tide peal of cash registers.

"For one thing," said the manager of a Philadelphia suburban store, "there is a shorter shopping season, so people are buying more in a shorter period."

And a spokesman for a large Pittsburgh department store predicted Christmas business will be ahead by 7 per cent. He attributed the increase of about 3 per cent over 1967 to a "more aggressive shopping pattern," with the shoppers buying more due to the seemingly disadvantage of fewer shopping days.

J. H. Williams, manager of S. H. Kress and Co. store in midcity Philadelphia, reports Christmas business so far is about 10 per cent better this year than last. He says he doesn't know why, except Thanksgiving was late, so there is more of a rush now to do Christmas shopping.

At Sotoloff, merchandise manager for Silo, Inc., selling mainly appliances in nine Philadelphia-area discount stores, said business this season is about 20 to 25 per cent ahead.

The only discordant report came from a Harrisburg variety store. Reporting sales below last year, a spokesman said, "I guess the blame can be placed on the late Thanksgiving."

Even he, however, joined the optimist in predicting a "very good" year in 1969.

Pennsylvania shoppers apparently aren't worrying about prices. "If they have an itch, they'll scratch it," said the Harrisburg variety store manager.

"Most of our big ticket items are toys and these are selling better than they did last year," reports Williams. "Tight money never has an effect on toys, not at all. People do not cut back at Christmas time."

A Pittsburgh variety store reports the sale of three stereo, television, radio combinations, at $1,000 each, the first time such sets have been sold.

Toys, appliances, clothing also are selling well. A store in Jenkintown reports "the fashion predictions seem to be coming through—chains, bells, scarves and other accessories are big items" on the Christmas shoppers lists.

Some delays in deliveries are reported, but not enough to cause any complaints. The nearer Christmas gets, however, the slower deliveries are expected to become.

Joseph Feldman, executive director of the Golden Triangle Association, with a membership of 200 Pittsburgh stores, reports most businessmen are having trouble finding help for six nights a week, the stores' added opening hours.

In Harrisburg, however, suburban stores reported no difficulty.

Most stores said they made no special efforts to hire more Negroes this year—"we hire what comes in" if they are qualified, was the consensus.

Except for dolls, the stores have not stocked toys specifically for Negroes.

Reeves Wetherill, public relations representative for Philadelphia-based John Wanamaker, said Wanamaker's has the smallest amount of war toys of any store in the city "less than one-half of one per cent. You can't even find the ones we have in the toy department. This has been our policy for a long time."

Wetherill finds Christmas shoplifting "perfectly terrible." "You know the majority of the shoplifters are professionals now. There are very few of those eccentric kleptomaniacs you used to hear about all the time—rich old lady Pushbottom who would pick up a few items and walk out (of the store) and then the family would call up and pay for them."

Reports from across two states were shoplifting was a tremendous problem of the Christmas season.

"It's just one of those problems which looks as though it never will be solved," said a Harrisburg storeowner.

Wanamaker's in Philadelphia had another serious problem—the hiring of Santa Clauses. "There are so many stores now and everyone has to have a Santa Claus," said Wetherill. "There must be 50 times as many Santa Clauses needed now as there were 10 years ago, with all the new stores moving into the area and the new branches opening."

Wetherill said he may "end up playing Santa Claus. I did that once, a good many years ago. Actually, it was pretty much fun."

ARTHUR H. SULZBERGER

Sulzberger of Times dies at 77

NEW YORK (AP) — Arthur Hays Sulzberger, chairman of the board of the New York Times, died today in his apartment after an extended illness. He was 77.

The Times came under the directorship of Sulzberger on the death of his predecessor, Adolph S. Ochs, in 1935. From then until his retirement as publisher on April 25, 1961, the years at the newspaper were marked by distinct changes, introduced gradually.

Sunday circulation nearly doubled in 25 years and daily circulation rose 40 per cent.

When he voluntarily retired as publisher he said it was because the Times must never grow old. "Youth," he said, "is best served by youth." He was nearing 70 then.

His son-in-law, Cyril E. Dryfoos, took over as publisher until his death in 1963, when Sulzberger's son, Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, took over.

Man slays wife, self

SHENANDOAH, Pa. (AP) — A man walked into a woman's clothing store Wednesday, shot and killed his former wife, then killed himself, police reported.

Shenandoah police said the victims were Anna Kowalik, 52, of Shenandoah, manager of Tobias Store, where the shooting occurred, and her former husband, Stanley Kowalik, 50, of Frackville.

Police said Kowalik walked in and fired a .38 caliber revolver at the woman, then turned the gun on himself.

Space eye takes notes on stars

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's new stargazer satellite took its first look at the heavens Wednesday and astronomers liked what it saw—a pair of bright, giant stars named Miaplacidus and Iota Carina.

At 4:44 a.m. EST, as the Orbiting Astronomical Observatory soared high over Tennessee, a radio signal opened a sunshade on top of the satellite, exposing a cluster of seven telescopes.

Another signal from the space agency's Goddard Space Flight Center aimed the telescopes at Miaplacidus and they lingered there for several hours before shifting to Iota Carina.

"We're receiving excellent data," reported a Goddard spokesman. "For the first time we've obtained ultraviolet data from these stars."

OAO was launched Saturday from Cape Kennedy into a 480-mile-high orbit, placing it above the earth's atmosphere which acts like a brick wall in preventing ultraviolet and other wave lengths of stellar energy from reaching telescopes on earth.

Astronomers believe that by studying ultraviolet emissions they can learn much about the heat and intensity of stars and thus obtain clues to their age. They hope to put stars of different ages into some sort of order and thus deduce the evolution of the stars and possibly the universe.

Both stars surveyed Wednesday are in the constellation Carina in the Southern Hemisphere. Both are large, bright bodies, several times more intense than the sun, but considerably farther away.

The seven telescopes are in a package developed at the University of Wisconsin. They are to inspect individual stars for hours at a time, observing chemical composition and the pressure and density of each stellar structure.

'Worst storm' of 25 years tears up shore of Presque Isle State Park

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Presque Isle State Park, a 3,000-acre playground peninsula that juts out into Lake Erie like a crooked finger, may be in trouble.

Hurricane-like winds, clocked at speeds up to 70 miles an hour, blew in from Lake Erie last week and pounded the shore with big waves that washed away much of the six to seven miles of beach sand.

After the waves receded, sand cliffs six to eight feet high remained at various spots where the beach was level before.

Without its sprawling beaches intact, Presque Isle won't be the same. That's why steel barriers and walls of stone were built in the restoration period to hold back the waves and protect the road that runs along the bay.

The ordinance will be discussed at a meeting 7 p.m. January 3 in the Flyte School House, Route 115, near Saylorsburg.

Bangor park expansion

Park land talks continuing

BANGOR — The controversial purchase of 13.77 acres of land to supplement the approximate 50 acre Bangor Memorial Park is nearing completion.

The Bangor Borough Council last June agreed to purchase the property from Carmen and Rosse Greco for $28,500.

The purchase, which will be made under the state's Project 70 program, would provide the borough with a $10,000 reimbursement from the State Department of Community Affairs.

Councilmen, during their meeting this week, authorized its solicitor, J. Lawrence Davis, to proceed with the final purchase.

Council had agreed to pay $14,250 to the Greco's before December 31. The balance is to be paid in 1969.

Three-year discussion

Negotiations for the purchase have been continuing for several months, but the property had been under discussion for about three years.

There had been objections to the acquisition since there is no firm plan for the use of the additional acreage. The council and Park Board currently plan to use the land for general park use to supplement the 50 acre Memorial Park.

Sources said, however, that the property was available and officials decided to buy it since it is adjacent to the park.

The Greco property, which is located on the west side of North Tenth Street has a 694.95 feet frontage on Tenth Street. The property is actually in Washington Township, but adjacent to the park.

Negotiations for the Project 70 funds are being made with Fred W. Mergenthaler, supervisor of land acquisition for the Department of Community Affairs.

Councilmen, during their meeting this week, also purchased a new police car. Jacob Dietrich, the lone bidder, submitted a bid of $2,890.

Police equipment
Council plans to install a plexa-glass partition between the front and back seats of the four-door car and also awarded the bid for radio equipment in the car to Motorola of Allentown at $1,158. Although industrial Communications bid $1,020 for the equipment, the Motorola bid covered much stronger equipment.

Pullis estate is valued at $70,698

PEN ARGYL — Pen Argyl funeral director Clyde A. Pullis, 74, who died last July 16, left an estate appraised at $70,698, according to a report filed in the Northampton County Courthouse.

Personal property is appraised at $30,698 of which $12,500 is funeral equipment.

Mrs. Beatrice M. Pullis, his widow, is the sole beneficiary.

Committee chairmen named by Greenzweig are: Paul A. Altemose, Christmas street lighting; Hoelzel, membership committee and Raymond O. Wetherle, dinner and publicity.

The Board of Trade will again donate $50 to the Christmas party for children.

The annual buckwheat and sausage dinner will be held January 13 in the Town Hall.

Bomb scares no longer threats

Any doubts that may have lingered over the severity of the bomb threats received in recent weeks were dispelled Tuesday. The issue is truly serious.

The doubts were dispelled early Tuesday morning when it was discovered that two Molotov Cocktails, filled with either gasoline or kerosene, were thrown through a window and into a classroom at Stroudsburg High School.

Suddenly the threats of bombs in area schools and industries take on a most serious aspect. These threats can no longer be taken lightly.

It now is apparent that all law enforcing agencies must join hands in a solid effort to rid the area of these almost daily threats and to protect our schools and industries against the type of thing that occurred at Stroudsburg High either late Monday night or early Tuesday morning.

There must be the greatest degree of cooperation between school and industrial officials with police forces and other agencies working to rid the area of another new wave of lawlessness. No stone can be left unturned to halt the possibility of great property damage and even loss of life.

The penalty for even telephoning a bomb threat carries a possible five-year prison term and heavy fine. The actual planting of any type of explosive or incendiary would undoubtedly carry an even greater penalty.

Suddenly each bomb scare becomes a threat that could cost the area thousands of dollars in property damage, not to mention the material and financial losses that are caused by simply dismissing classes early on any given day.

The Ronson plant in Delaware Water Gap recently joined East Stroudsburg State College, East Stroudsburg High School and Stroudsburg High in receiving bomb threats.

Industry and education are the backbones of our very daily life, in which every area family is represented by at least one member.

The safety of these individuals must be guaranteed.

Both will be missed

Monroe County has lost the immediate touch of two of the finest social workers to ever serve in the area. We have lost two driving forces that have aided those less fortunate than ourselves in recent years.

Both George G. Kahl, executive director of the Burnley Workshop, and Mrs. Shirley Cummings, a field representative of the Eastern Branch of the Keystone Heart Assn., have accepted positions with the Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation.

The only redeeming factor in the recent changing of jobs is the knowledge that we haven't lost their services or their magic touch completely.

Both will be assigned to the Northeastern District of the Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation and will be working out of the Wilkes-Barre office. The Northeastern District is made up of 11 counties, one of which is Monroe. The list also includes Pike and Wayne.

Both Mrs. Cummings and Kahl have stamped themselves as loyal workers, understanding individuals and outstanding organizers during their presence in our community.

The new assignments will take place immediately after the first of the year and for Kahl will mark the continuation of work among disabled people, this time on a state level rather than at Burnley Workshop.

Kahl has been the major reason for the growth and expansion of the workshop in East Stroudsburg during recent years and was a major force behind its planned move to a new location near Snyder'sville.

The absence of Kahl and Mrs. Cummings will be strongly felt by their respective organizations. However, their presence in the area will continue to give comfort to those individuals in need.

Both are to be congratulated for a job well done and each may leave knowing full well that he will be missed.

Leo Carroll, Ridgefield, sends me this one from his American Legion magazine:

A psychiatrist was trying to help a man who had gone through life obsessed with the notion that there was a huge fortune awaiting him somewhere. The habit had become so ingrained that it took the psychiatrist several years to make some progress toward "restoring him to reality."

"And then," sighed the doctor as he told the story to friends, "just as I seemed to have him over the hump there comes this letter informing him someone had left him a great fortune!"

As a consolation prize this column thinks that Vice President Humphrey should be given the premiership of Canada or, as Bill Lauf suggests, keep him in action by electing him mayor of Bethel.

Rough five years

President regrets experience with press

By DONALD R. LARRABEE
Record Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — No matter how he slices it, Lyndon B. Johnson believes he has gone through an insufferable experience with the press during the past five years. He hopes Richard M. Nixon will fare better — but tends to doubt it.

The outgoing president has been meeting privately with a few sympathetic reporters in recent days. In these sessions, the talk invariably turns to the "unfair treatment" he has received from the news media — particularly unnamed television commentators and columnists.

It is an obsession with the president and a subject on which he will undoubtedly have more to say in his memoirs and published writings during the months ahead.

The president seems to be convinced that his inability to win over the opinion-makers obscured the accomplishments of his administration. Beyond this, Johnson tells friends he has been not only mistreated but subjected to unwarranted personal attack and ridicule by powerful elements of the "eastern press."

While he and other public men are victimized by "untruths" and harsh statements, he feels that the press itself is immune to criticism and pays no price for its sins of omission or commission.

Hopes in history

But he consoles himself with the thought that history will reflect badly on the press for failing to give him a fair shake.

In the early months of his administration, Johnson made a calculated attempt to win over a press contingent which was strongly devoted to President John F. Kennedy and his team.

While he knew the dimensions of his task, he enjoyed the honeymoon that is allowed to most newcomers at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. and may have been lulled into a sense of false rapprochement. The president recoiled and went into shock when it ended.

Richard Nixon did not captivate his press coterie during the campaign and, like Johnson, is entering his White House duties in an atmosphere of hostility and skepticism, to say the least. His choice of Herbert Klein as a "coordinator" of news for the entire government has done nothing to assuage the unbelievers.

Nixon, of course, is no newcomer to Washington or to the national press. His denunciation of reporters after his 1962 gubernatorial defeat in California still rankles. It is not unlike the way Johnson talks these days.

Johnson tried to lick his image problem. He invited Washington reporters and their families to a lawn party early in 1964. He thought he had made some headway but the cookies and punch didn't have the expected staying power.

The president suffered with the regular White House press corps because of his penchant for secrecy and his desire to keep his options open until the final moment. Reporters received denials of stories that were later to be confirmed. The Credibility Gap became a code phrase for the Johnson Administration.

President Johnson said the "gap" was not created by him but by the columnists and the commentators. He likes to uncover what he variously calls "lie" and "errors" on the news tickers which clack away incessantly in his office. He doesn't understand how the press can "get away with it," as he puts it.

Sore point

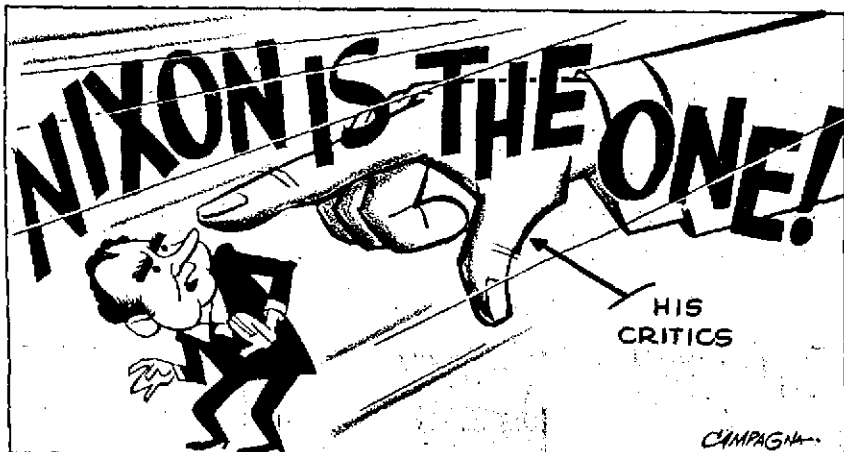

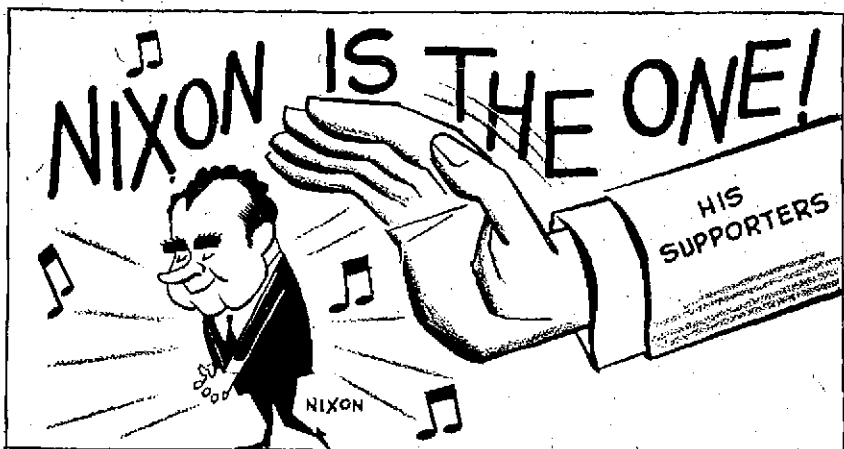

This has been a sore point especially in connection with the reporting from Vietnam. He has been suspicious of newsmen when their reports have not duplicated those he received from the generals.

But, Johnson has admitted on at least one occasion that his earlier press secretaries may have widened his breach with the press. The president has a gripe against some television commentators. He has been known to call them "soap salesmen." He also has a "thing" about an alleged press establishment — a few studs, as he puts it, who breed stock opinions and spread their anti-LBJ venom throughout the mass media.

Of all the problems Richard Nixon will inherit from Lyndon Johnson, and they will be many, he can perhaps be thankful that he will not be in the position of following a Kennedy in the White House. Johnson clearly resented the highly favorable press enjoyed by the Kennedys, as compared with his own.

But Richard Nixon is stuck with the nagging problem of all presidents — how to deal most effectively with a natural "enemy," The Press, as it pries and pokes, digs and dredges in the interest of the public's right to know — and sometimes strikes a sensitive nerve in the process.

Storm cloud ahead

WASHINGTON — For President-elect Nixon a political storm cloud is blowing up from a protectionist-minded Congress.

It confronts the new administration with a painful and perilous dilemma: Nixon's challenge will be to stem rising inflation which, unless he succeeds, would put the dollar in jeopardy and engulf nearly everything else he wants to do.

This is a hard enough task in itself and every economist knows it. But now Nixon is the target of powerful pressure, partly of his own making, pushing him in exactly the opposite direction he wants to go. If not powerfully resisted, it can wreck his efforts to bring inflation under control.

A flood of protectionist import quota bills from textiles to steel to strawberries is being readied in Congress and this will be Nixon's early acid test.

He will have to choose. His choice will be whether to stand firmly behind his commitment to halt inflation or to compromise and yield to pressures to impose extensive import quotas which would raise prices and abet inflation.

When it comes to resisting or yielding to congressional demands for import quotas and thereby risking his first crucial test in checking inflation, I would expect Nixon to put his anti-inflation program ahead.

Not easy choice

But it won't be an easy choice. The first test will come on the mounting demand, primarily from Southerners, to impose stiff quota limitations on a wide range of cotton textiles. And here is where Nixon is most exposed. He owes some debt to Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina who helped him get the nomination, and South Carolina is the biggest textile-producing state in the country and ardently protectionist.

And in the campaign Nixon certainly gave his Southern audiences and others the impression that the case for quota protection would, at the very least, have his attentive ear. The GOP platform also speaks about how "a sudden influx of imports can endanger many industries."

What, then, are the facts which the new Administration will have to weigh in deciding whether it will endanger its ability to cut inflation by yielding to a degree of protectionism which tends to fuel inflation?

Protectionists view rising textile imports as a grave threat to the domestic textile and apparel industries and say that the economic health and employment in whole sections of the country are menaced by such imports. Their goal is to restrict imports by sharply defined quotas which allow, for example, only so much of a certain type of fabric to enter the United States from certain countries each year regardless of price, quality, style or seasonal demand.

Factual answer

Apart from the broad question of whether the United States isn't better off competing in an expanding world trade, the factual answer to the textile-protectionist view is more persuasive. And the best factual answer comes from the U.S. Tariff Commission, which has completed an exhaustive study of the textile industry's claims as to why it feels it needs to be shielded from imports.

Its report contradicts the industry at nearly every point. It states that U.S. textile firms are showing rising sales and rising profits, stable employment despite automation, increased take-home pay for workers. It contends that in the relatively few instances in which production has not expanded, "imports have not been a major factor."

And the National Retail Merchants Assn. warns that restriction on textile and apparel imports "will lead to inflated prices in a basic ingredient of every family budget."

All this is why Nixon faces a critical choice. If he does not stem the tide for import quotas, he will be crippled in his priority need to stem the tide of inflation.

JONAS — Although Jonas no longer is an official post office, it did operate for 49 years under the name of Jonas and Sterners.

The name was changed from Sterners to Jonas on Feb. 9, 1911.

John Snyder was the first of two postmasters at Sterners and Jonas, serving from July 1, 1903 to Jan. 31, 1949.

The only other Jonas postmaster was Ralph Snyder who served from Jan. 31, 1940, until Jan. 31, 1952, when the post office was closed and mail was distributed from the Effort post office.

Money on line

HARRISBURG — When the 1969 Legislature convenes a month hence, Republican Gov. Raymond P. Shafer will be facing the rather ignominious fact that his money bills (of all bills!) will be at the mercy of sponsorship by opposition Democrats!

The rather unique situation derives from the fact that while the Senate will be in Administration GOP hands, the House of Representatives will not — and all "money" bills (tax measures, appropriation bills, etc.) by constitutional decree must originate in the lower chamber.

House Democrats, with a half-dozen more votes than the 102 needed to pass legislation, will control all of the lower chamber machinery — including the all-important committee posts from which legislation (including money bills) must first be cleared.

The fact is that legislation sponsored by the opposition minority party rarely sees the light of day from majority-controlled committees — unless of a rather picayune and inconsequential nature.

Democrats at helm

Thus any tax measures the Shafer Administration may have in mind — plus all Shafer administration appropriation measures — will not bear Republican sponsorship (if precedent is followed) but rather that of Democrats!

The situation illustrates only too graphically just how "strapped" Gov. Shafer may be during the 1969 — and 1970 legislative sessions.

It illustrates just how much at the mercy of Democrats the administration will be for the next two years!

General legislation (in contrast to tax and appropriation measures) on the other hand can be introduced in either House or Senate.

However hardly any operation of State Government functions today without some sort of fiscal entanglement — which perhaps pointedly returns the issue once again to the "money" side.

Shafer's situation is not exactly peculiar to his administration.

Support for bandmaster

Editor, The Record:

In reference to the article of December 8, 1968, concerning statements made at the meeting of the East Stroudsburg School Board.

One board member, according to the article, stated that "high school band mothers were currently criticizing the efforts of present East Stroudsburg bandmaster John Casagrande."

There are usually some, I suppose, who will criticize, but to refer to the organization as a whole as doing this is quite unfair.

My wife is an active member of the high school bandmothers and would like it known that she for one, is behind John Casagrande 100 per cent, as I am.

I also feel that the majority of the band mothers and the general public feel that Casagrande is doing a fine job as bandmaster.

Opposes council's action

Editor, The Record:

An article in The Record December 5, stated that our Stroudsburg Borough Council had taken action to oppose a Youth Development Center at Bangor as it might harm us as a resort area.

I have watched with interest, for several months, this controversy in Bangor hoping they would accept this opportunity to rehabilitate youth.

Now that our community has taken official action, and because of a sermon in my church this morning, it points up our lack of responsibility in aiding youth with problems, and that we are putting our resort business ahead of human helpfulness and our greatest resource, youth.

I hope our borough council reconsiders its opposition, and that Bangor decides to accept this youth rehabilitation center.

Unhappy with article

Editor, The Record:

The front page of the Friday, Dec. 6, Pocono Record contained an article of two girls killing two little boys.

We, and many others who feel the same way, do not care for such front page articles. In fact, they do not have to be anywhere in the paper.

The schools encourage our children to keep up with current news in the newspapers. To us, such sensationalism can not be considered news. Too often it gives the guilty parties the attention they seek. In many cases medical attention is needed rather than publicity.

Perhaps it would be wise to put emphasis on the merits of society rather than failings.

Named to committees were Mrs. Shirley Curtis, outreach and fellowship; Mrs. Vivian Morris, faith and life, and Mrs. Annabell Peechanka.

The new officers will be installed during the January meeting.

The highlight of the meeting in the church was a talk given by Robert Wittig, who spent 13 years in Ecuador as a missionary.

Wittig told of his experience flying in a plane to reach Indian tribes in remote parts of the country. He also served as an engineer for radio station HCJB, a station founded in 1931 by Dr. Clarence Jones to propagate religion in nine different languages.

Mrs. Marjorie Woodling led devotions and Mrs. Ann Serfass, a guest, was introduced. Members were reminded that subscriptions to Lutheran Women and World Encounter are about to expire and can be renewed by contacting Mrs. Edith Brong.

Mrs. Nita Morris, Christian action committee chairman, reported that advent wreaths had been made and given to all Sunday School children.

Several articles of clothing made by Mrs. Ethel Hill were displayed and will be sent to the ingathering at St. Peter's Church, Reaglesville.

All club members were urged to send Christmas cards to servicemen. Caryl Nidland and Mrs. Betty Warner will send Christmas cards to all persons who visited the church during the past year.

During the ceremonies, Mrs. Nancy Curtiss, assistant leader, awarded more than 100 badges to the members of the troop with whom she has been working since the beginning of the session.

Mrs. Joyce Morgan, leader, welcomed the mothers and explained plans for the season which include intensive work for more badges and a concurrent report system by which mothers may observe on a large poster the progress made by their daughters in achieving badges.

Mrs. Irene Van Driesen, assistant leader, aided in passing out badges and giving patrol leader cards to Sue Ann Shollenburger, Mary Morgan, Susan Lindsey, Denise Quarmley and Karen Horwitz.

Ann Landers

Woman can help

Dear Ann: I'm in desperate need of advice. I hope you can help me. My childhood was not a very happy one, which I'm sure is part of my problem. My father was a handsome heel who had one affair after another. I was crazy about him but he ignored me. I married too young because I thought it would solve my problem which was getting beyond control. I was a good-looking girl and had lots of dates, but I ended up sleeping with every boy who said a kind word to me.

I've been married three years, now and have two children. My old problem is back. The milkman is beginning to look good to me. Also the television repairman, the mailman and the insurance fellow. I have fantasies of being intimate with any male I look at.

Please don't tell me to go to a psychiatrist. I wouldn't be able to control myself with one. I'd end up either involved or rejected. Help me, Ann.

CHICAGO MESS

Dear Chicago: Some of the finest psychiatrists in your city are women. Select one and get the help you need.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to put in my two cents' worth about married children alternating holidays with their parents. The letter from the woman who signed herself "Wishing Fairness" and felt left out because her son and his wife spent so many holidays with HER family sounds like my daughter's mother-in-law. She can have them. All they need is an invitation. I'm sure they'll go. I've had the whole bunch here for more dinners than I care to recall and I'm tired. What gets me mad is that they think they are doing me a favor by coming.

Why don't married kids invite Mom and Dad to their homes for holiday dinners once in a while? I'll tell you why. Because it's too much like work. It's easier to be a guest than a hostess. (And cheaper, too.)

If you will print my letter I promise to telephone my daughter and tell her to read Ann Landers' column the day it appears. So help me!

SWOLLEN FEET

Dear Feet: Start dialing. Honey. Here it is.

Dear Ann Landers: As a last resort, we, the desperate male students at Michigan Technological University, are writing to you for help.

This is a good school, great ski country, but it's awfully lonely up here without any girls. I shouldn't say "without any" because there are some but not enough. The ratio is about 10 guys to every bird.

If you help us the girls up here would appreciate it, too. They are so exhausted from the social life they have trouble staying awake in class. Thanks, Ann, you're a real doll.

MEN OF M.T.U.

Dear Men: Here's your letter with a word from The Doll. Anyone interested in M.T.U.,

Knows all jails

NANTES, France (AP) — Roger Offrette, 55, went to jail for the 55th time, he claimed, telling the judge: "I know all the jails of France. I could classify them just like in a hotel guidebook." This time it was three months for lying in front of a bus while drunk and delaying the bus' departure a half hour.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

The highest compliment you can pay a good bridge player is to say he sees through the backs of cards. What this means is that he plays each hand as though he knows the location of all 52 cards, instead of only the 26 actually on view.

Of course the statement is not literally true, for the expert does occasionally founder despite his prowess, but there are many times when his performance could lead one to believe he was working with a marked deck.

For example, on this hand declarer had to function exceedingly well to make four hearts.

West led the A-K-Q of diamonds, South ruffing the last one. Declarer drew two rounds of trumps, cashed the king of spades, and led another spade, on which West followed low.

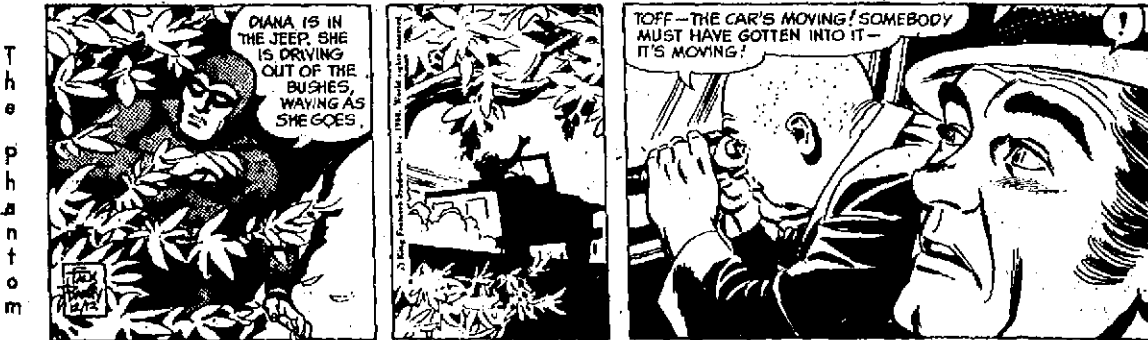

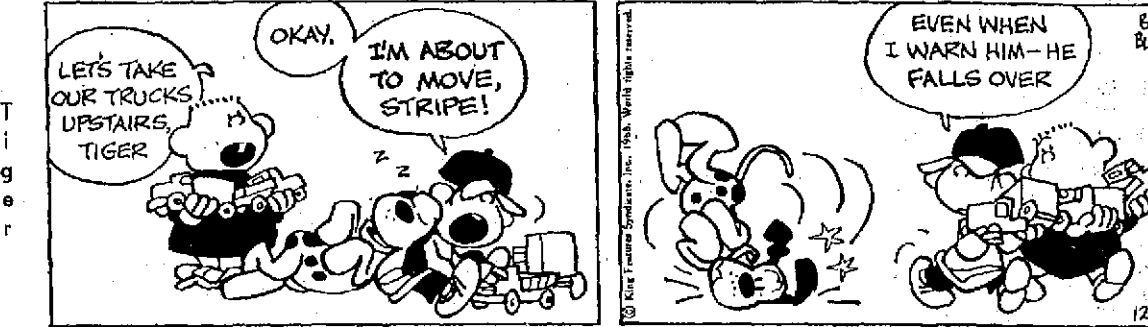

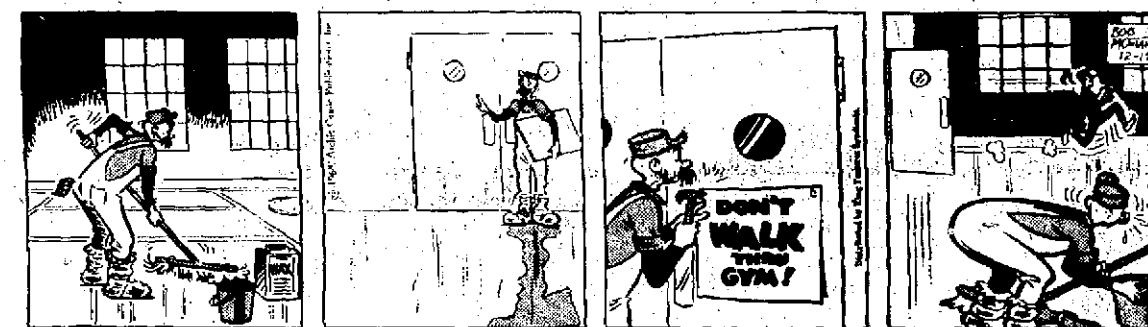

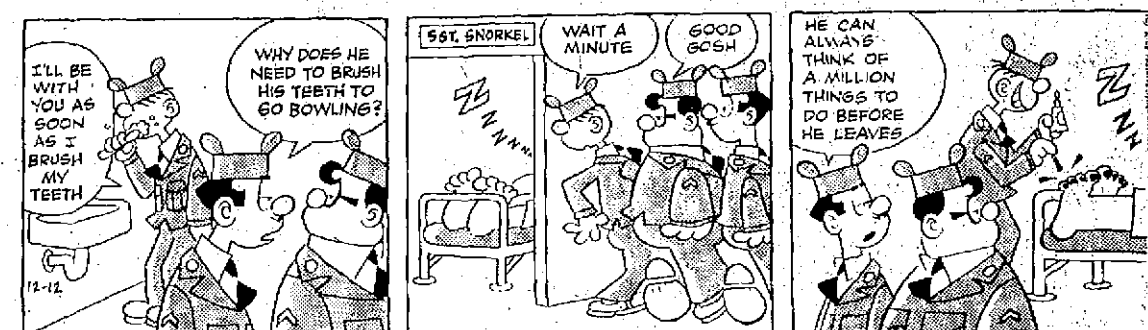

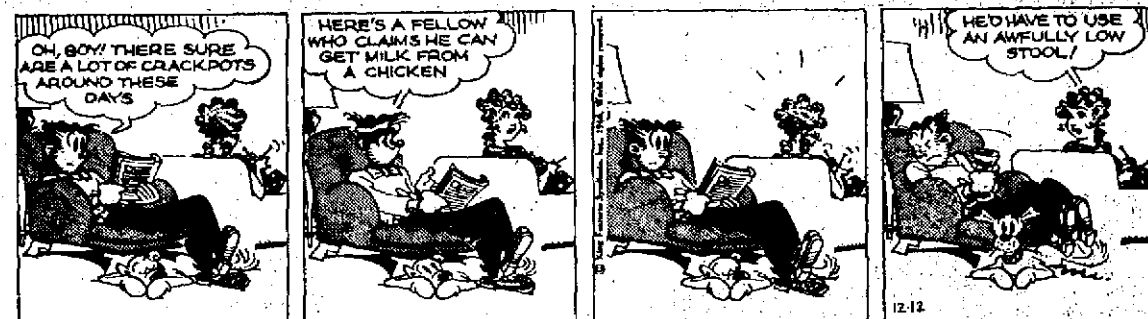

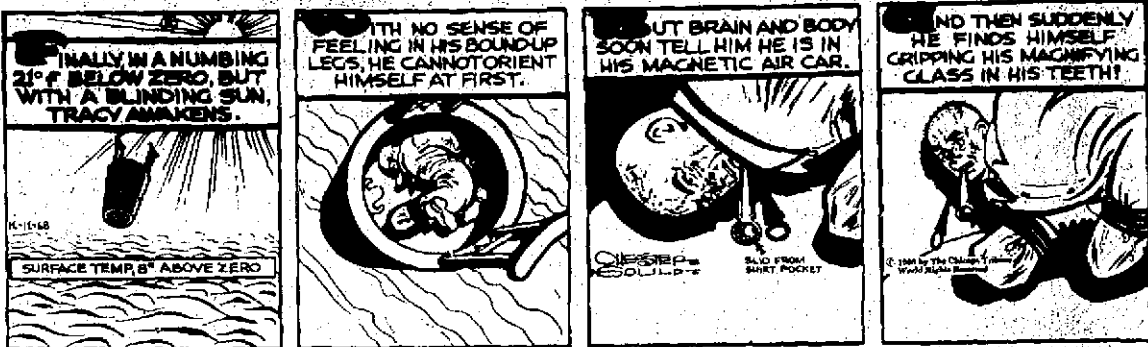

Spurning the finesse, even though West had opened the bidding with a spade, declarer went up with the ace, speared the queen, and thus made the contract. Had he finessed the jack, he would have gone down one.

It does seem strange for South to refuse the finesse, since West was highly likely to have the queen. But declarer's play was eminently sound, as we shall presently see.

Let's suppose West had had the queen, which seemed highly likely on the bidding. In that case, South would have played the jack next and discarded a club on it.

West would win with the queen, but any return he made would hand South the contract. West would be endplayed, since he could not afford a club return into the A-Q, while a spade return would permit declarer to discard the queen of clubs as he ruffed in dummy.

By rejecting the finesse, South assured the contract if West had the queen, and at the same time assured the contract if East had the unguarded queen. The ace play gave South an extra chance to make the contract.

Bell working on bomb threat calls

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg High Schools, East Stroudsburg State College and Renshaw have been the victims of bomb threats by anonymous telephone callers in recent weeks.

The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania has set up an "anonymous call center" in its Stroudsburg office to handle customer complaints about anonymous, obscene, malicious, harassing or threatening calls.

These complaints, of course, include bomb threats. E. B. Chura, Bell's Stroudsburg office manager, said the unit works closely with Bell's security department, which establishes close liaison with local law enforcement officers, to assist in investigating obscene and threatening call complaints.

Specific details of methods used in tracing calls or line identification will not be made public, Chura emphasized, to prevent annoyance callers from obtaining useful information. He pointed out that the telephone company does not prosecute violators. The called party does that through normal legal channels.

Buying good Christmas tree takes know-how, patience

By FRED WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Selecting a Christmas tree should be getting easier every year. Growers and dealers are doing their best to produce better trees in a larger number and always just in time for Christmas.

There are innovations, too, which have offered new ideas of displaying and keeping trees and the artificial tree is gaining on the ever popular pitch-scented "live" tree. In recent years, efforts have even been made to market potted, living trees for the holidays which may be planted after and kept for several seasons.

Everybody gets in the act of selling Christmas greenery which makes for a fluctuating market of available evergreens and a wide choice in price and type of tree.

There are, then, decisions to be made, between husband and wife, and any other potential user of the Christmas tree as to type of tree, the right tree for your home, according to price and use; whether to buy directly from the tree farm, a neighboring store or service station or other retail outlet or just go and cut your own.

Because producers and sellers are making efforts to market better trees, prices will reflect this added care.

Some will give individual care to each tree from the time of harvest to the time of delivery; others will pile them on a truck and stack them for customers to randomly get the pick-the-lot.

This gives you the chance to buy a tree at almost no cost, but the average minimum cost is three dollars to an average maximum cost of $15. There are lower and higher prices.

Most dealers will try to match the price of a tree with that of a customer because a satisfied customer is still a regular patron. The established dealers usually can count on a favored number of customers every year.

Personal preference also influences price; depending on the purchasing power of the patron he might be willing to pay a high price for a medium quality tree, not knowing any better, while he wouldn't pay a dime for a good quality tree.

Most of the trees available in the area can be considered locally grown at tree-farms from a radius of about 50 miles.

Each dealer has his own "ideal" source of trees. The established, well informed dealers are guaranteed some profit.

It is the temporary, quick-deal set up, usually manned by an inexperienced person in hopes of making an easy dollar that finds the venture unsuccessful, especially when he finds a tired-looking lot of trees after a two-week stand before Christmas.

There are some basics about selecting trees which the average customer can rely on. Miss E. Anne Lott, assistant county agent for Monroe County, gave some "ornamental horticulture" advice:

The most popular tree is still the Scotch pine, followed by spruce and fir. In price, the spruce is the cheapest, the fir is more expensive.

Considering needle holding ability, pines hold needles the best, firs next and spruces last.

They follow the same order for the longest to the shortest needles; pines have the longest and spruces the shortest.

Some people will prefer the fir for its distinguished fragrance.

The Scotch Pine is the choice if you like a thick, full and tightly sheared looking tree. But if you like a lot of open space between branches, Colorado Blue or White spruce or Douglas fir would become the choice.

The fir has short, stiff needles that are very long lasting and very bright green in color.

Know where the tree will be put in the home. Why bother looking for a "perfect" tree if it will be placed against a wall or two sides are hidden by a corner location?

Check the bottom whorl of branches for a "crook". A new cut above the bottom whorl might be required to improve the looks of the tree.

To assure longevity through the holidays, always make a new cut at the base, always at an angle, as long as possible, and still hold firmly in the tree-stand.

The more surface exposed, the greater the water intake will be. Sugar is a common added item in the water. Avoid placing the tree near direct heat or ventilation to prevent more drying out.

Remember, any tree you have in your house is a fire hazard, unless you use some commercial fire-proofing material. The best safeguard is just common sense in the way you handle it.

Planning group would limit growth along Martins Creek

By BERT WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter

BANGOR — The Lower Mount Bethel Township Planning Commission has proposed a plan to prohibit industrial and residential development along Martins Creek in an attempt to avert a future flood disaster.

The proposal was made during a public hearing Tuesday night in the Cultural Center, Bangor.

The hearing was conducted by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to listen to suggestions by area residents on the nature and cause of flooding problems in the State Belt area and personal suggestions for solutions.

Winfield Keck, chairman of the Lower Mt. Bethel Township planning commission, testified that, "Our commission believes one of the ways to deal with the problem is to prevent industrial and residential development along the creek."

Keck said the planning commission recommended that township supervisors acquire properties along the creek to prevent such development. He indicated that other municipalities should do the same and that the property could be used for recreation.

Keck, who lives along Martins Creek, also stated that tons of debris flowed in the creek during the Aug. 3, 1967 flood. He suggested the creek be dredged and the channel deepened.

State Representative Philip Ruggiero of the 137th District also recommended dredging the creek and deepening the channel.

Keck said the dredging and increasing the channel depth "could be done at modest expense and provide considerable improvement."

Keck and Ruggiero were among 11 persons who testified at the hearing. All persons appreciated efforts by the Corps of Engineers to study the recurring flood problem and devise a remedy.

The Corps is initiating a $18,000 flood control study for the 44.55 square mile Martins Creek watershed. The study, however, will take five years.

Corps officials told the nearly 40 persons in attendance that a multi-purpose project will be designed with the primary aim being flood control.

Mark Ruch of Flicksville said the area of his home was flooded twice in 1967.

Ruch was gratified that the State Department of Forest and Waters came into the area to aid residents immediately after the flood, but added that the money spent by the department for some temporary flood work, was wasted.

"I'm afraid if we have another rain like that we'll get it again," Ruch said.

"I just feel like a nickel on a three dollar bill," Ruch added, "but anything that could be done would be appreciated."

The latter statement seemed to be the consensus of the feelings at the hearing.

Michael Kaiser, director of the Lehigh-Northampton County Joint Planning Commission, said some multi-developments on the creeks should be given consideration. He also said the commission has numerous data on file which it will provide to the Corps.

An area resident had testified that the creek bank once was eight feet, but now is only three feet and not high enough to prevent any flooding.

A spokesman for the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad said his firm would provide any assistance the Corps needs with the project.

Horizon's hue blue at ESSC

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg State College's academic and student enrollment horizon could be painted "blue" in the foreseeable future with the possibility of "university status," according to ESSC president Dr. Frank D. Sills.

Dr. Sills stressed not only expansion of the physical growth of facilities but also an increase in the quality of the academic curricula.

Citing curricula expansion Dr. Sills said, "With an expected enrollment in 1974 of 4,500, all departments of the college are encouraged to develop new programs based on the needs of the students who will be attending the college."

"Part of this program will be accomplished by the formation of new autonomous departments. A new Physics and Chemistry department was established this summer. In the future, formation of separate Philosophy and Psychology departments are planned."

"Also under consideration are programs in Nursing, which would offer a B.A. Degree; Speech Therapy; and Physical Therapy. There will be expansion in the existing department's increasing subject matter for specialized concentration within each student's major field of study."

"Relative to graduate programs, practically every academic department on the campus will be involved in the development of graduate programs during the next five years."

"To accommodate this expansion there will arise a need for many bright, qualified faculty members. In the next five years we expect to increase the faculty by approximately 186 members," Dr. Sills concluded.

P. M. discusses tax collector pay

SWIFTWATER — Dr. Anthony Boly, former president of the Pocono Mountain School Board, Wednesday urged a uniform salary for the eight school district tax collectors during the board's meeting in the high school at Swiftwater.

The board took no definite action on Dr. Boly's request but recommended that the board's budget and finance committee study all facets of district tax collector's remuneration prior to the board's Jan. 8 meeting at which time the board will discuss tax collector's salaries with the tax collectors.

The board also discussed the recent proposal of a Monroe County centralized tax system proposed by Irving Sommer, president of the East Stroudsburg Area School Board.

Board member James Manhart believed that a single tax collector for Monroe County was against existing state laws.

Board solicitor Philip Williams assumed that a countywide centralized tax system would have to be put on a voter referendum. He believed that it could be authorized by the recent new amendments to the state constitution.

The board requested Williams to check on the legality of a single tax collector for the school district and also for the county.

Superintendent Dr. William F. Nye told the board that recent investigations of temperature readings in Pocono Elementary classrooms at Tamersville revealed temperature readings varying from room to room between 70 and 74 degrees.

Certain parents of students had been complaining of specific rooms being too hot or too cold. Nye said that the problem of overheated rooms could be indicative of an "unbalanced heating system" but that recent findings by a Honeywell engineer revealed that the Pocono Elementary school has a balanced heating system.

Board member John Kerrick said the heating trouble could come from teachers changing classroom thermostats. He urged that the thermostats should have a locking device.

Nye, reporting on the uneven heating distribution in the first grade room, recommended the installation of a baffle plate in a ventilator that was throwing in too much air. He also called for insulation in the northwest wall or adding a radiator in that area to control a draft. The board approved Dr. Nye's recommendations.

The annual Senior Class trip to the New England states from May 10 to 12 was approved by a 6 to 2 vote with Claire Witt and John Montgomery casting the negative votes.

Montgomery asked whether the trip was necessary and questioned if there would be enough control over the seniors. He also was concerned that the school might be liable for any mishaps on the trip.

Dr. Nye said there would be no liability on the school's part.

The board approved temporary transportation for a number of pupils who live in the Arrowhead Lake Development, Tobyhanna Township. The vote was 6-2 with Montgomery and Verdon Rustine going against the majority vote.

Thurston Blakeslee was hired as a bus driver at $11.79 for the 26-mile run. Blakeslee will drive a 20-passenger bus for the new run.

The board awarded Cypher's Electric Co., Bartonville, an insulation contract on the second floor ceiling at Barrett Elementary School. Cypher's submitted a low bid of $2,400.

The board hired Jean Cooper as an elementary teacher at Barrett School.

ESSC places nine on 1968 all-conference football team

Kelly rates No. two in voting

WEST CHESTER — Co-champions East Stroudsburg with nine selections and California with seven dominate the Coaches' All-Pennsylvania State Colleges Football Conference team announced Wednesday.

West Chester, a bridesmaid in the Eastern Division after two successive conference titles, was next with six selections on the 30-man first team. Shippensburg placed three men, Clarion and Kutztown two each, and Slippery Rock one.

California's Jeff Petrucci, who led the conference and the nation's small colleges (NCAA and NAIA) in total offense with 2,944 yards and an average of 327.1 yards a game, was the closest thing to a unanimous choice.

The rugged rollout quarterback from Clarion, Pa., earned first place votes from nine of the conference's 13 coaches.

East Stroudsburg sophomore guard Joe Kelly, of Upper Darby, was runnerup in the popularity poll with eight votes.

Rounding out backfield

Four of the leading rushers in the conference — West Chester's Bert Nye (724 yards) at fullback, Shippensburg's Lou Orndorff (376 yards), the leading vote-getter at halfback; and sophomores Bill (Rocky) Rees (405 yards) of West Chester, and Ralph Gish (323 yards) of East Stroudsburg.

Rees and Gish tied for the second halfback post with four votes each.

Nye — top scorer in the league with 54 points and second-leading punter (37.0-yard average) — is the lone backfield repeater from last year's team.

Nye — who nosed out East Stroudsburg fullback John Pitzer, 6-5, in the voting — is one of eight repeaters on the first team.

The others are West Chester's Don Wilkinson at end and Dave Eavenson at tackle, and Slippery Rock center Carl Simmons, all on the offensive unit; and West Chester end Bill

Robinson sets mark at third

BOSTON (UPI)—Brooks Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles tied a major league record by leading American League third basemen in fielding average this year also set an AL mark by leading the circuit's third basemen in assists for the sixth time.

Official figures released today by AL president Joe Cronin revealed that Robinson's .970 average made him the league's No. 1 defensive third baseman for the eighth season. Robinson thus tied a record set by Willie Kamm of the Chicago White Sox and Cleveland Indians between 1924 and 1934.

Robinson also led the AL's third basemen with 353 assists setting an AL mark of leading in that category in six seasons.

The other individual leaders by position were:

First Base: Danny Cater of the Oakland Athletics with .995.

Second Base: Bernie Allen of the Washington Senators with .991.

Shortstop: Rico Petrocelli of the Boston Red Sox with .978.

Catcher: Joe Azcue of the Cleveland Indians with .996.

Outfielders: Mickey Stanley of the Detroit Tigers and Ken Harrelson of the Red Sox with 1,000 each and Roy White of the New York Yankees with .997.

The Tigers led in fielding percentage with .983 followed by the Orioles at .981, the Yankees, Red Sox and Indians at .979.

Record number named

Reese happy with selections

EAST STROUDSBURG — During the fall, football and its fever is all over the campus of East Stroudsburg State College but during winter months the program is quartered on "the back 40" in Spacious Koehler Fieldhouse.

That's where head Warrior coach Charlie Reese was found Tuesday accepting congratulations on the showing his boys made on the Pennsylvania State College, All-Conference team.

In an office full of traffic, Reese said, "It's terrific. The publicity will go all over the state and will be a great help to our program."

Reese was elated that 19 members of this year's undefeated Warrior team were recognized in the balloting by the state college coaches.

The first team is composed of 21 seniors, five juniors and four sophomores. Twenty-seven hail from Pennsylvania, two from Virginia and one from New Jersey.

Reese refused to be critical of what could be termed the major surprise of the selection. — the placing of the Warriors' do-everything quarterback Bill Duckett on the honorable mention list.

"There are always some inadequacies on any all-star team. This type of thing is hard to select. I do think Duckett should have been named on the second team."

Reese said the coaches may have used the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics statistics in determining the all-star quarterbacks.

He pointed out that Jeff Petrucci, who lead California State to a 28-28 tie with the Warriors in the championship game, ranked fourth in the nation in total offense and deserved the first team berth.

Sophomore signal caller The second team selection at quarterback Bob Erdeljac of sophomore at Clarion, was 18th in the nation in total offense.

Writers vote award to Rose

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)—Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds, the 1968 National League Batting champion, Wednesday was named winner of the 1968 "Hutch Award" by a voting of major league baseball writers and broadcasters.

The award is presented annually to the major league player who best typifies the fierce competitive desire and spirit of former major league manager and pitching star Fred Hutchinson, who died of cancer in 1964.

Thomas Munzel, a student at the University of Cincinnati medical school, was awarded the $1,000 scholarship that complements the award to the player. Munzel, 22, is the son of Edgar Munzel, veteran baseball writer of the Chicago Sun-Times.

Rose was a landslide winner in the balloting. Pitcher Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals finished second and pitcher Denny McLain of the World Champion Detroit Tigers was third.

Previous winners of the award were Mickey Mantle (1965), Sandy Koufax (1966) and Carl Yastrzemski (1967).

Young Munzel was an honor student and high school baseball star at Maine East High School in Park Ridge, Ill., and was a left-handed pitcher on the Harvard University baseball team. He graduated from Harvard last June.

Rozelle names new assistant

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bernard H. Jackson, a former patrolman and presently executive director of the New York Police Department's Civilian Review Board, will become an administrative assistant to football commissioner Pete Rozelle on Dec. 30 it was announced Wednesday.

Jackson, who was appointed director of the review board in March of 1967 after serving as assistant director, will have primary responsibility in the area of security.

Minneapolis aglow

Minneapolis is all aglow as all the lights in downtown business buildings were turned on this week to signal the Christmas lighting season. In addition, Minneapolis had more than a million tiny lights in trees and store windows along the eight-block Nicollet Mall. Major buildings are outlined in lights.

Public likes scooter cops

DETROIT (AP) — Put a policeman on a scooter and perk up police-community relations. Some officials say that's what appears to be happening in Detroit, where Police Commissioner Johannes E. Sreen has introduced the Community Oriented Patrol (COP), putting first 36, now 62 officers on what some persons called "silly looking" minicycles.

"If the city council offered me 1,000 additional officers or 200 scooters, I would take the scooters," says Sreen, who instituted a similar program when he was operations chief of the New York City Police Department.

Prior to the scooter patrol, Sreen says, police contact with the community was "negative," making arrests and on-the-scene investigations.

"Now, we're continually getting letters of praise from homeowners and businessmen," he says. Police officials add that a frequent comment from businessmen is: "I rarely saw a policeman until the scooters began patrolling."

Some police scoffed at the scooter idea when Sreen initiated it last September. A few even called it "Sreen's folly."

But Sreen says officers of the scooter patrol now "seem excited about the job."

"The people like you when you stop and talk with them," says one patrolman, a 12-year veteran of cruisers.

"A scooter officer is like a magnet—kids swarm around him," adds Inspector Robert W. Moore, commander of one of two stations at which the program first was tested.

The original scooters have logged some 1,000 miles each and patrolmen have had personal contact with an estimated 30,000 citizens, said Lt. Richard Bouton, one of the officers in charge of the program.

So far, the department's worst fears about the program—police injuries and scooter thefts—have not materialized.

In the first two months of the program, the patrol made 51 arrests, including 22 for felonies.

Scooters also have been effective in chasing suspects on foot and in searching for lost children, because they can cover more territory and afford wider vision than scout cars.

They are handy for spotting purse snatchers and thieves who steal from shoppers' cars, so the department has created an afternoon scooter shift to patrol large shopping areas.

Antique Lore

By Ruth Kay

The jolly Santa Claus we are all familiar with today did not start out that way. In fact, he did not become fat and jolly until after 1914.

Pictures tell the story in any family history and we know from early Christmas Card collections that Santa Claus was illustrated as a tall, thin, sometimes stern figure and carried switches for the naughty children. After switching them he then threw fruits, candy and nuts inside the doors of their homes.

It was Clement C. Moore in his poem "A Visit from St. Nicholas," who depicted Santa Claus as fat, jolly and chuckling. It was Moore who gave Santa his sleigh and eight reindeer with bells. In the same poem Santa takes his first trip down the chimney to fill the stockings of all the boys and girls.

This poem "A Visit from St. Nicholas" appears on the back of lithographed Christmas cards of 1894. The picture on the cards were illustrated by artist Robert Weir, who in 1834 exhibited a painting of St. Nicholas at the National Academy of Design. These Christmas cards are valued by collectors today.

Another popular illustrator of the 1830's and 1840's was John Gadsby Chapman. His pictures appeared on Christmas cards of those early days. Chapman illustrated Santa with a cloak and put a feather in his fur-lined cap.

Few people agree as to who printed the first Christmas card, but there is little doubt as to which one popularized the custom of sending greetings. This was a card designed by J. C. Horsley, R.A. in 1846. It was widely distributed by a Sir Henry Cole.

LEGAL NOTICE

An examination has been made of the financial statements of the STROUDSBURG AREA SCHOOL AUTHORITY for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1968. The accounting procedures, accounting records and other evidence in support of these statements have been reviewed. This examination included all procedures and tests that were considered necessary according to the circumstances.

In my opinion, based on this examination, the accompanying Statements fairly present, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles and practices, the financial position of the STROUDSBURG AREA SCHOOL AUTHORITY as of June 30, 1968, and the results of the transactions during the fiscal year ended on that same date, and in compliance with the various covenants and obligations imposed by the Trust Indenture of July 15, 1961, and May 15, 1964.

Terrorism escalates in Thailand

BANGKOK (AP) — The Communist-led insurgency in Thailand appears to be spreading and intensifying, with the terrorist bands better armed and showing increasing willingness to take on government forces. There are reminders here of earlier days in Vietnam.

Press reports mention Communist bands using mortars for the first time in the hills 200 miles north of Bangkok. One police source said heavier power may have to be brought to bear, presumably meaning artillery and air strikes.

The Communist Suppression Command's latest weekly report told of 12 clashes with terrorists and nine instances of snipers opening up on either officials or government positions. Three helicopters were hit by ground fire although none was forced down. The bare statistics were reminiscent of Vietnam—an official killed here, three wounded there, a village school and a tribal welfare office burned in a third spot while in a fourth 150 terrorists ambushed a police patrol.

A relatively new element in the Thai insurgency has been an increase in terrorist acts in the northern provinces near Laos where the Communists are afforded limited sanctuary across the Mekong River.

The government officially says the steadily increasing number of ambushes and attacks are carried out by Meo tribesmen with help from fellow tribesmen in Laos. Other sources say the attackers include Thais and Chinese of Thai descent.

Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn says the infiltrators in the north come from a center where 400-500 men are being trained by the Laotian Communists and North Vietnamese regulars in Laos.

Tribesmen in the north apparently have been intimidated to some extent by the infiltrators' attacks and terrorist drive them away from the government—a familiar development in guerrilla warfare.

Because of the U.S. commitment here, the surge of insurgency has ramifications for Washington too.

Besides a half-dozen major U.S. air bases involved in the Vietnam war there is an elaborate U.S. advisory effort with the Thai armed forces. Some U.S. troops are reported to accompany Thai forces in the field under orders not to shoot unless fired upon, a former ground rule in Vietnam.

Those familiar with the Vietnam war are not always heartened by official statements on the insurgency here.

Police Lt. Gen. Prakarn Jantiphon, for instance, said Communist bands in the north do not dare meet his police patrols in stand-up battles.

Guerrillas, until they move into conventional warfare, almost always strike quickly from ambush and fade quickly into the safety of the jungle. Such optimistic statements about the enemy did not help U.S. advisers in Vietnam convince the government there several years ago about the guerrilla danger.

Breast cancer link uncovered

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Two Philadelphia physicians may have found a reason for the high death rate of women from breast cancer, the most common form of cancer among women.

Barrett tree ceremony to be held

CANADENSIS — The annual Barrett Community Christmas tree lighting ceremony will be held Thursday at 7 p.m. in front of Barrett Elementary Center.

Donald Russell, president of Pocono Mountain Rotary Club, will be master of ceremonies.

Clergymen of the community will participate.

Alvion Van Driesen has arranged for Santa to appear and provide candy for the children.

A children's choir under the direction of Miss Diane Blitt will lead in singing.

Barrett Township firemen will install the lights tonight.

The affair is sponsored by the Rotary Club, Barrett Lions Club, firemen, and Barrett Junior Women's Club.

Seal drive reaches 64 per cent

EAST STROUDSBURG—Carl Secor, president of the Tuberculosis and Health Society of Northeast Pennsylvania, Monday said the Christmas Seal drive in Monroe County has reached the 64 per cent mark and urged everyone to respond to make the drive a success.

According to his figures, $10,490.91 has been collected. He compared this figure to the amount collected last year at this point of the drive. Collected in 1967, was $10,472.65.

Secor pointed out that the needs for the communities' support is greater today than ever and noted that the problem of air pollution is a great threat.

The society predicts that by 1983 more than 180,000 persons will die as a result of non-tuberculosis respiratory diseases such as emphysema and chronic bronchitis.

Secor also noted that Pike County has reached the 71.4 per cent mark in its drive this year.

Altar-bound

STROUDSBURG — Samuel Cutler, 49, Wilkes-Barre, and Sylvia S. Cutler, 44, Kingston, were the only couple to apply for a marriage license Tuesday in the Monroe County Courthouse.

STROUDSBURG — At the regular weekly meeting of the Men of Retirement Age held at the YMCA, plans for the annual Christmas party were discussed.

The affair, a joint venture by MORA and the Leisure Hour club, will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 18.

It was also announced that new officers for the coming year would be installed officially on Jan. 15.

No meetings of the club will be held on Christmas and New Year's Day, which fall on Wednesdays, the normal meeting day for the club.

East Stroudsburg plan

Goal: quality education for pupils

By PETE GRADY
Pocono Record Reporter
EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Area School District has released their long range development supplemental plan for district school buildings. The plan strives for quality education for each and every pupil, from kindergarten through 12th grade.

The basic material for the plan was prepared under the direction of Mrs. Pauline Peterson, school district superintendent and compiled and developed by Chaffee and Heckman, Associates, Bethlehem, educational consultants, research and development.

The supplement identifies and defines present educational objectives for each area of the educational program, comments on strengths and weaknesses of each area defined, and asks for strengthening the recognized weaknesses.

Areas investigated were language arts, health and safety, languages, fine arts, music and art, social studies, math and science, industrial arts, kindergarten and pre-school services and school libraries.

Strengths and weaknesses of the following programs took up more than half of the supplement.

ART, K-12
Program's strengths consist of an art specialist for grades 7-12, in-service workshops for elementary teachers.

Its weaknesses reveal no art specialist in elementary grades, a minimum of audio-visual aids and too high a class load in the junior-senior high school.

According to the plan, weaknesses in art will be overcome with the arrival of the Middle School, sometime after 1972; hiring an elementary art specialist and a step-up roll for the instructional media specialist.

Business Education, grades 7-12
Strengths: teacher's up-to-date knowledge and skills in latest materials, machines and procedures; annual addition of course and deletion of out-moded courses; good variety of office machines for student training.

Weaknesses: insufficient work-experience opportunities; Typing 1 and personal notefaking should be provided for all academic students; room for large group instruction in typewriting.

Overcoming weaknesses: a room to house data processing and computer equipment; large group instructional room in proposed Middle School; additional teacher for business instruction for college-bound students; more community work experience programs for students who will be employed after graduation from high school.

Foreign Language, grades 8-12
Strengths: four year, in-depth courses in French, German, Spanish and Latin; language specialists for each course; a language laboratory for individual and group instruction.

Weaknesses: four-year language study offered only to academically talented pupils; no Russian and Chinese language offerings; no foreign language programs for elementary grades.

Overcoming weaknesses: when budget permits, school will move foreign language courses down into elementary school; working with guidance counselors and teachers to permit any student to take a language and adjust program to meet student's ability level.

Library, grades K-12
Strengths: well-balanced book collections; ESEA Title II funds used wherever and whenever possible; number of books per student; school spends about $67.60 per student in library annually.

Weaknesses: larger physical facilities for some libraries; no carrels with phones for listening experiences and conference rooms for discussion groups; library should be open during summer.

Overcoming weaknesses: bigger and better libraries when Middle School arrives; a plan to include in 1968-1969 budget money for a microreader for junior-senior high school librarian.

Language Arts, K-12
Strengths: pilot program in speech in team teaching with English and speech majors and another one in linguistics in elementary school; secondary program organized on a three track system which provides for individual pupil differences.

Weaknesses: lack of adequate coordination of program from K-12; insufficient writing experience offered to pupils; too many remedial reading problems in senior high school.

Overcoming weaknesses: plans for adding electives of drama and speech in secondary school; employment of a reading specialist for diagnostic and remedial clinic; developing needs to utilize textbooks as guides and sources of material.

Mathematics, K-12
Strengths: team teaching in elementary school and homogeneous grouping in secondary school provides more graduated courses in math; adoption of a K-6 basal text; heavier stress on independent study.

Weaknesses: continuing program in in-service training for math teachers; more individualized instruction; a new outlook in math for the underachiever.

Overcoming weaknesses: in-service for elementary teachers; pilot groups for an updated elementary math textbook; implementation of a triple-track study for math, from grades K-12.

Reading, K-12
Strengths: all elementary classrooms employ grouping procedures for reading instruction; all elementary grade teachers use a co-basal text approach; cross-grouping at grade level occurs in one area.

Weaknesses: no district-wide standardized testing program in reading; more individualized instruction; greater stress on "phonics" in the primary level.

Overcoming weaknesses: remedial reading program for all reading levels; a filing system with index cards containing reading information on each child in the district; developmental reading program instituted in senior high school and a critical review of basal reading material.

Risible resolution

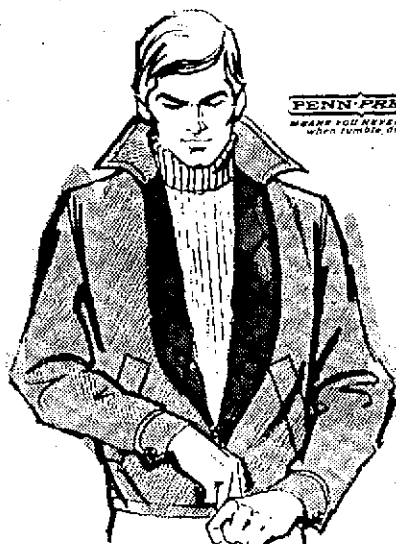

EDMONTON, Alta. (AP) — The annual meeting of Social Credit party politicians greeted uproariously the introduction of a resolution for control of "the sowing of wild oats in Alberta." When reworded to say the government should investigate the cost of chemical control of wild oats, the resolution won approval. It emphasized wild oats constituted a province-wide problem.

New liner's glamor in gamble against speed

GREENOCK, Scotland (AP) — Queen Elizabeth 2, the luxury liner that even has dog kennels with a view of the sea, sails down the River Clyde later this month on her first voyage into an era of uncertainty.

Her first cruise was to begin earlier this week, but a mysterious oil leak on a speed trial run in the Firth of Clyde late in November is delaying the sailing about two weeks.

After four years Britain's Cunard company is ready for a $70-million try at winning passengers back from the airlines.

It's a gamble that could succeed brilliantly—or flop miserably once the honeymoon is over. Much is at stake for the dwindling passenger ship industry.

The first nine-day cruise will be the first test whether QE2 really can combine its aims: supreme efficiency, comfort and speed against a backdrop of the fun ship to end them all.

Five hundred selected Cunard employees and their families will be aboard with orders to test the liner to the limit.

This guinea pig cruise, as Cunard describes it, will not be the QE2's official maiden voyage. That is scheduled for Jan. 17, on a trip to New York. The oil-line problem is not expected to interfere with that.

By that time the 906 crew members will be expected to have smoothed out any rough edges aboard the ship they call a new experience in ocean travel.

QE2—65,000 tons of elegance with a faintly rakish air—amounts to a different concept from the old Cunard flagships that queened it over the Atlantic in the decades before jet flight.

The Queen Mary and the Queen Elizabeth, destined to wind up their careers as hotel-convention-museum attractions on the California and Florida coasts of the United States, were built expressly for weekly Atlantic crossings. Demand for the type of service provided by the queens of 80,000-plus tonnage each has almost halved in the past 10 years, so QE2 will

LCB agents not checking Gap bridge

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Officials at the Delaware Water Gap Joint Toll Bridge reported that Pennsylvania Liquor Control Boards (PLCB) Agents apparently are not checking the border here to halt illegal traffic of alcoholic beverages.

The Liquor Control Board agents are waging a campaign to stop Pennsylvanians from purchasing liquor in New Jersey and transporting it back into Pennsylvania.

A PLCB spokesman from the Allentown office said recently that all borders throughout the state are being checked.

The officials at the toll bridge said to their knowledge no cars are being stopped there and searched.

In the Easton-Phillipsburg area, PLCB agents go into New Jersey and watch Pennsylvania cars stop at liquor stores.

The Phillipsburg Town Commission is irate over this procedure, questions its legality and last week decided to file a protest with Gov. Raymond P. Shafer and the legislature.

spend two-thirds of her time on luxury cruises in search of the sun.

More than 8,000 applications were received for the 2,025 passenger places available for January's maiden voyage. Some 65 per cent of the people sailing by QE2 in the first year are expected to be Americans.

What they will find is a virtual floating holiday resort, with a lot of open deck space—6,000 square yards. The liner is less than 1,000 feet long.

Among the features are dining rooms high in the superstructure looking over the sea; nine bars and 10 lounges; two lido decks with open-air swimming pools; a modern art gallery and a 600-seat movie theater.

Unlike the rigid three classes of the old Cunarders, QE2 will operate sometimes in a two-class structure—standard and deluxe—and often virtually classless on cruises.

Differences among the 932 cabins lie basically in their size and location, not so much in their furnishings and fittings. The general design is light, airy and modern, getting away from the "grand hotel" approach.

QE2's main lounge is two decks high, with a curving staircase down to the dance floor.

"Any lady who wants to make

Headchopper

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Last month the village council in nearby Norton hired Omer Staubs as finance director for $12,000 a year and asked him to find ways to save the village money.

Omer has found a way. He doesn't think the village needs a $12,000-a-year finance director. He quit Monday.

a grand entrance anywhere should get a ticket for this ship and come down that staircase in her finery," a Cunard man said.

QE2, skippered by bearded Capt. William Warwick, will be formally handed over to Cunard at Southampton Dec. 19.

Two days before Christmas

Citizens for Nixon show profit

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Citizens for Nixon Committee reported receipts of $2,357.96 and expenses of $2,347 for the November general election. Advertising was the highest expense.

Major contributors, according to the report filed by Alex L. Bensinger, committee chairman, were from: R.C. Hughes, $500; Lee Andrews, $300; William A. Brooks, $200; and Helen Hughes, Edwin B. Hughes and Dr. Anthony Harlacher, all $100 each.

State Rep. Russell Kowalsky, D-Northampton and Monroe, reported a $500 contribution to the Monroe County Democratic Committee.

Couples apply

STROUDSBURG — Dean W. Keenhold, 21, 2 Howard St., Stroudsburg, and Ruan Suelo, 24, Stroudsburg R.D. 5, and Murton J. Whitney, 30, Stroudsburg R.D. 5, and Marys A. Cramer, Stroudsburg R.D. 5, were the only couples to apply for marriage licenses Monday in the Monroe County Courthouse.

the liner takes the first paying passengers on a four-day charity cruise which is shaping up as a major social event. Capt. Warwick's orders are to head for the best weather he can find within 750 miles of Southampton. Special fares start at $300 for a two-berth cabin, but luxury suites are being auctioned and may fetch around $3,000. Proceeds will go to the National Society for Cancer Relief.

After what Cunard calls a "minimaiden" cruise to the Mediterranean in early January, QE2 will be set for her real maiden voyage—13 days following the sunshine route to New York by way of the Canaries and the Caribbean.

This is where Cunard's big gamble really begins.

QE2, for all her attractions, is one ship trying to do the job of two—fast Atlantic services in summer and pleasure cruising in winter. Her future as a fun ship seems the more assured, even though she has huge capital and running costs against her.

A bigger question mark is whether she can survive on the Atlantic run by sheer glamor in the coming age of supersonic jet flights lasting only four hours or so.

Cunard is confident the gamble will pay off. "We're going to make money with this ship," said chairman Sir Basil Smallpeice.

Cunard is a privately owned company, but it obtained a $57.6-million government loan to help build the Queen Elizabeth 2. The figure 2, incidentally, was chosen because it was considered modern and easier to read—and to prevent any confusion with Elizabeth II the monarch.

The Green Thumb

Start compost buildup now

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

MAKE A COMPOST PILE: Now's a good time to start your compost pile for next spring's garden. Save all those potato peelings, orange and grapefruit skins, coffee and tea grounds and dozens of other materials. Start the pile in back of the garage or in some inconspicuous place. Leafmold can retain 300 to 500 per cent of its weight in water.

Compost will help loosen up a heavy clay soil, and "lighten" up a sandy soil. If you're worried about cats or dogs digging into the compost pile, spread a sheet of black polyethylene over the pile. Use a piece large enough to allow about 18 to 20 inches of flap on each side.

Then cover the flaps with bricks so that pile is completely enveloped. The beauty of using plastic is that you don't have to stir or fork the pile. The plastic hastens decay by trapping heat inside and preventing loss of moisture.

LANDSCAPING YOUR HOME: Now's a good time to be thinking about landscaping your home for 1969. Experts suggest that 10 to 30 per cent of the cost of a new home should be spent for landscaping.

There is a lot more to gain from landscaping than merely the esthetic. Good landscaping cuts down on your fuel bills in winter and makes your home cooler in summer.

A properly located tree can reduce summer room temperatures as much as 20 degrees. Trees not only eliminate the "attic furnace," but will cut your fuel bill by as much as 30 per cent, by acting as a wind-break.

To heat an ordinary house, it takes twice as much fuel at a temperature of 32 degrees and a wind of 12 miles per hour as it does for the same temperature and a wind of three miles per hour.

And trees fight air pollution! They take in carbon dioxide and give off oxygen. America should plant 10 trees for every 100 automobiles and 100 trees for every truck on the road. And trees, unlike most things you buy, increase in value. A tree that costs you $5 today may be worth $100 to $200 or more in 10 to 15 years.

FREE: If you want to landscape your home, send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of my guide, "How to Landscape Your Own Home." My guide lists some do's and don'ts, lists dozens of shrubs and trees to select.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "Please tell me what causes the tips of my Japanese Yew evergreens to have a yellowish cast. They were fine this summer."

Answer: Your trouble is due to a combination of sun and wind during the cold fall and winter months. Drying of tips is quite a common thing on yews, especially those in windy spots during the winter months. Cover the plants with burlap bag, or spray with an anti-wilt spray.

Interracial supper set Sunday

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Interracial Council will sponsor a Christmas Covered Dish Supper on Sunday at 5 p.m. at the Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

Following the supper there will be group singing and a Christmas reading given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howell of the Phoenix Players. Everyone is welcome.

Anyone interested in attending is requested to call Mrs. N. Patterson at 424-1538 for further details.

College dean is consultant

BETHLEHEM — Dr. Alfredo G. de los Santos, Jr., Dean of Instructional Resources at Northampton County Area Community College, has been added to the roster of approved consultants for the Association of College and Research Libraries, a division of the American Library Association.

The roster, which will be released in the Spring of 1969 by the American Library Association, lists Dr. de los Santos in the Library Administration Division qualified to serve as a consultant for junior college libraries.

Habit-forming.

When you stack one U.S. Savings Bond on top of another, it becomes a habit that's tough to break and hard to beat. That's because it's so painless. Just tell your employer or banker to set aside a regular amount from your paycheck before you have a chance to spend it. Sign up today.

NOW—Higher Rates!

Savings Bonds now pay 4.25% when held to maturity—and Freedom Shares (sold in combination with E Bonds) pay a full 5%. The extra interest will be added as a bonus at maturity.

And now you can buy the Bond/Freedom Share combination any time—no monthly commitment necessary. Get the facts where you work or bank.
